

Curiosity Questions

Questions can be great- they can help you find out things that you don't know. They can even help you find out more about your friends and family! Why not spend some time thinking of Curiosity Questions to send to your loved ones?

1. Start off by making a list of people that you would like to find out more about (this could be family members of friends).
2. Think about what you already know about them.
3. What else would you like to find out?
4. Make a list of questions that you would like to ask them. This could be questions like: if you could do any job in the world, what would it be? or what do you like to do for fun?
5. Pick your favourite 5 questions and send them to the people of your choice.
6. Wait for their response- they might even send you some questions in return. This way you can keep the conversation going!

Here are some ways that you could send your questions to friends and family:

- * Send a note through the post
- * Speak on the telephone
- * Send text messages or emails
- * Video call
- * Send a voice note
- * Send a video

For each of these methods, we would recommend that you ask for your adult's permission first
